

IS NOW IN EFFECT

GRAIN INSPECTION ACT BECOMES OPERATIVE.

A Chief Grain Inspector Will Have the Supervision Over All the Work of Grading.

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—The new grain inspection act came into effect yesterday. It affects Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and Ontario, as far east as Fort William, and the inspection will apply to all for the east and for export, and will be made at Winnipeg. There will be a chief grain inspector appointed who will have supervision over the work of the whole inspection staff of the western inspection division; this is an entirely new office. All officials will hereafter be paid regular salaries instead of a fee of 40 cents per car for all grain inspected under the old system, when the inspectors also had to employ their own deputy inspectors, car samplers and other employees. In future when grain is once inspected no mixing will be allowed and if mixing should be done by the owner he can never again obtain an official inspection of his grain other than for the mixture. A board of appeals is appointed which will be situated at Winnipeg where the original inspection will be made, and any one dissatisfied with the grade given by the inspector, may at once appeal either to the chief grain inspector or to this board of appeal. In fact if dissatisfaction exists with the chief grain inspector's decisions appeal may be further made to the survey board.

No appointment has yet been made to the position of chief grain inspector, but the new act provides that all those heretofore acting in the capacity of inspectors or deputy inspectors shall retain their offices under the new arrangement. The salaries of the various officials has not yet been decided upon by the department or if so no word of such decision has yet been received here.

A FARMER KILLED.

Mr. Francois Bonin, of St. Norbert, Falls From His Wagon While Awake.

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—A lamentable accident occurred near St. Norbert Thursday night, causing the death of one of the most respected residents of that parish, Mr. Francois Bonin. Mr. Bonin came to Winnipeg with his son yesterday to purchase some lumber. He bought the load and left for home about six o'clock, the son remaining in the city. The young man started for St. Norbert early the following morning, and was horrified to find the dead body of his father lying on the road about a mile from the town of St. Norbert on the main road. The old man who was 64 years of age, had evidently fallen asleep during the night and slipped from his seat. The wheel of the wagon struck the back of his head and caused his death. The horses attached to the wagon were standing a short distance farther along the road when found.

Customs Collections.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—Returns available yesterday show that the customs revenue of Canada for August reached what is said to be the highest figure ever collected in one month in her history, the amount is $2,631,870, which is $512,672 more than for August of last year. Last month there was shown a decrease from July, 1898, on account of the abnormal rush to Canada then of German and Belgian goods to catch the 25 per cent preference, which existed but for a single month. This month's gain, however, more than balances up the deficiency.

The information in the hands of the department is yet to show in what lines these gains were made this month, but seems to point to an increase generally in importations for the fall and winter trade, relying on the continuance of the present prosperity.

China and Italy.

Pekin, Sept. 1.—Owing to the spirit of opposition and evasion shown by the tsung yamen, the Chinese foreign office in the negotiations now progressing between China and Italy, the Italian squadron in Chinese waters will be immediately reinforced by two torpedo boat destroyers.

Car Blown Up at Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—A combination car on the Wilson avenue line was blown up by a powerful explosive laid between Scoville and Quincy streets last night at 9.30. There were six passengers on board, five of whom sustained broken legs.

Brussels, Sept. 2.—The Belgian chamber of deputies rejected a motion to revise the constitution, the vote standing 95 against 31 for. The motion was intended to pave the way for a universal suffrage bill.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Mrs. Martin Mulcahey tried to start a fire yesterday morning by using a can of kerosene. Her clothing caught fire and she was badly burned. She died in the hospital.

Fell Off a Hand Car.

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—Dominio Gallo, an Italian section hand employed on the Southwestern, was seriously injured by falling off a handcar a few miles from Winnipeg. While travelling along the road at a fair speed, he in some way fell off and was run over by the car. He was brought into the city and taken to the General hospital, where it was found that his injuries were very serious, his back having been broken. His jaw bone was also fractured. His suffering was terrible. He will undergo an operation today.

LAW CONFERENCE.

International Law Association Convened at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 1.—At the opening session of the conference of the International Law Association, Hon. Sherman S. Rogers, of Buffalo, delivered an address of welcome to the delegates. The opening session was presided over by Hon. Sir Wm. R. Blandy, judge of the high court of justice in England.

The international arbitration committee made the following report at its session yesterday:

1. The conference accepts the report adopted by the executive council July 18, 1899, of the special committee appointed at the London conference in 1895, which has, in accordance with the directors of the Brussels conference of 1895, presented a scheme for the formation of a court of international arbitration. The conference cordially thanks the committee for the care with which it has thus completed the work entrusted to it, direct that the scheme be printed together with proceedings of the conference and commends it to public notice as the association's contribution to the further education of the world.

2. The conference expresses deep gratification at the adoption by The Hague peace conference of a scheme of international arbitration which carries out one of the main objects of this association, as expressed in reiterated resolutions, from the time of its opening conference at Brussels in 1873. The conference recognizes as specially valuable the following leading features of the scheme, viz., First, the nomination of a body of men of recognized competence in questions of international law and enjoying public esteem who will be ready to act as arbitrators. Second, the selection by the parties to any international dispute from amongst the members of above named body of arbitrators and an umpire to form an arbitral tribunal. Third, the creation of a permanent administrative council, composed of diplomatic representatives at the court of The Hague, with the Netherlands minister of foreign affairs as president. Fourth, the establishment, under the direction of the above named council, of a permanent bureau, whose services will be at the disposal of all arbitral tribunals.

Strikes Bottom in the St. Lawrence.

Montreal, Sept. 2.—In leaving the harbor yesterday morning, the Allan line steamship went out of the channel, owing to a defect in the steering gear and struck slightly on the bottom. The damage appeared to be slight, and the Parisian proceeded on her way, but near Contrecoeur, about 40 miles down the river, it was noticed the vessel was leaking. The captain therefore brought her to anchor, and riggers were sent down from Montreal. The passengers remained on board, and the vessel will proceed to Quebec for repairs. It is expected one day will be sufficient to repair the vessel. The accident is attributable to jamming of the helm, and not to the condition of the channel which was amply deep.

Montreal Iron Famine.

Montreal, Sept. 2.—An iron famine has struck Montreal with a vengeance. With one or two exceptions large buildings in which structural iron is used will have to be suspended until next spring and even longer. The advance in prices for delivery next spring is all the way from 75 to 150 per cent over the prices of a year. This scarcity is caused by the increased demand all over the world.

Gasoline Engine Explodes.

St. Paul, Sept. 2.—A new gasoline threshing engine belonging to Albert Kockette exploded yesterday and killed and seriously injured. Kockette himself was injured about the head but nothing seriously. The company's expert was running the engine at too high a rate of speed. The separator was also wrecked.

Montreal, Sept. 2.—The dead body of a young man, believed to be Fairbairn Christie, 19 years old, son of John Christie, the electrical inspector of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co., was found in Christie's residence, 50 Shuter street yesterday. The family are spending the holidays at Pake's Island, Maine, and have not yet returned. This morning a younger son returned and on entering a room he found the body, which was taken to the morgue. So far it has been impossible to identify the body, because it is bloated with gas and out of all recognition.

Alliston, Ont., Aug. 31.—While a young man named Orr, son of Rev. Mr. Orr, of Mono Mills, and a cousin named Beitz, of this place, were bathing, the former, was seized with cramps, and in spite of the efforts of Beitz was drowned.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—The Canadian Pacific railway will use about two thousand new thirty ton box cars constructed at the car works of the company for the western grain business this season. The new cars will have a capacity of a thousand bushels each.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—The first proceedings in what promises to be a case celebre has been taken in the superior court in connection with the will of the late Mrs. Maxwell Hedde, nee Dame Hortense Le Duc, the divorced wife of the late Mr. Jehin Prume, the Keligan violinist, who died last November in London, leaving an estate valued at $400,000 to $500,000, to the night Refugees of Paris, less some minor legacies to relatives. The action is taken by Dr. Thomas J. J. Prume, son of the violinist, to hold some property and other valuables in this province valued at $50,000. The plaintiff declares he is legitimate, is the son and heir to the late F. Jehin Prume by his wife, nee Delvechee, and he adds that after the latter's death his father married the late Dame Hortense Le Duc in Montreal, in March 24th, 1881, without a marriage contract; that they subsequently went to Paris, and that on May 26th, 1883, Mrs. Prume obtained a divorce at Spa, Belgium. The plaintiff alleges that this divorce is illegal and null on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction, the parties being residents of Montreal and besides his father, the late Jehin Prume, had no opportunity to contest the application made for a divorce. Dame Hortense Le Duc died in London on November 23rd, 1898, and his father having died since, the plaintiff contends that under the law of communaute de biens he is entitled to one half of the estate.

VIOLINIST'S WILL.

THE ESTATE VALUED AT FROM $400,000 TO $500,000.

The Son Contends That Under the Law of Communaute de Biens He Is Entitled to a Half.

DEATH SENTENCE.

Private McVeigh, of the Wyoming Battalion, Assaults His Superior Officer.

Victoria, Aug. 31.—A well authenticated story has been reported here from the Wyoming Infantry battalion in the Philippines, to the effect that Private McVeigh, of G company of that command, who had been court-martialed for striking and threatening to kill his company commander, Capt. Wright, now rests under sentence of death. Sentence will not be carried into effect until President McKinley has approved it.

Goes Over the Road.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Frank Tossell, the defaulting cashier of the Freehold Loan & Savings Co., who used the company's funds to speculate with this morning's sentence to three years in the penitentiary by Magistrate Denison. Tossell, it will be remembered, was sent by the company to its Winnipeg office, while an investigation was made into his accounts. Crown Attorney Curry told the court Tossell had returned $2,000 of the $1,000 embezzled, and asked for a light sentence, and the solicitor for the Freehold Loan company, substantiated this and drew attention to the exemplary behavior of Tossell before he began to speculate. The magistrate said the confidence reposed in the prisoner made the case all the more serious, and the accused received a severe sentence.

Burning Floor Falls on Six Men.
Yuma, Ariz., Aug. 31.—Fire yesterday in E. F. Sagnetti's merchandise store resulted in the loss of six lives, and caused $150,000 damage. A crowd of men were carrying goods from the building when the second floor fell upon them. Besides killing six, a number were injured.

Michigan lumbermen have entered suit against the Ontario government in connection with the prevention of the export of logs.

Michigan Lumbermen Enter Suit Against the Ontario Government.
Toronto, Aug. 31.—Michigan mill owners have entered a petition of right at Osgoode Hall. The legislature insisting that the manufacture into lumber in this province of all logs cut on crown domain be declared ultra vires, or unconstitutional, and that the crown be liable for any damage sustained by Michigan or other owners under that law. The attorney-general of the province at first would only allow a petition of right to be filed on condition of the suppliants waiving any claim for damages. Later on he withdrew this condition, and damages are claimed, and if the case goes against the crown they must be paid. The suppliants are both parties in Michigan interested in mills there that formerly cut Ontario logs in that state and the Canadian Bank of Commerce, which is also interested in certain limits that exported logs to Michigan. All parties interested in having logs cut in Michigan, it is understood, have joined in supporting the petition of right, which is filed by Scott and Houston, their solicitors; H. J. Scott, Q. C., and Christopher Robinson, Q. C. will act as counsel for suppliants and the government have retained Mr. S. H. Blake, Q. C., and his firm, Blake, Lash & Co., to act on behalf of the attorney-general and the province.

PETITION OF RIGHT.

Young Ladies Lose Their Lives.
Quebec, Aug. 31.—A sad drowning disaster occurred yesterday morning at Little River, just outside the city. Two daughters of James Gillespie, a well known farmer, named Alice and Francis, with two cousins from Ottawa daughters of George Gillespie, named Helena and Nellie, went in bathing at waterworks bridge, almost opposite Gillespie's residence. Nellie, a young lady of thirteen gave a cry and disappeared under the water. Her companions all rushed in to the rescue, and Alice Gillespie, a girl about 24, and Helena, about 16, both bright young ladies, lost their lives in their heroic efforts to save their cousin. The other two ladies were rescued with difficulty and in a very exhausted condition, principally through the efforts of Stuart Ramsay, another cousin.

Bigamist Sentenced.

Barrie, Aug. 31.—William H. Perry was tried yesterday for bigamy, a charge on which he was arrested a week ago. Rev. J. T. Caldwell, of Mimico, identified Wm. Perry and Margaret McDonough as two persons he married in Midland, August 12, 1896; and Rev. J. H. Mallott identified Perry and Ann Dempster as a couple he united in Orillia on Aug. 14 last. The first wife, who is a second cousin of her husband, swore she had never been married to any person else, though she had lived with H. Myers, a barber here. The second wife swore she thought Margaret McDonough was married to Myers, till she married Perry. This was the line of defence followed. Magistrate Ross sentenced Perry to one year in the county gaol at hard labor.

Oom Paul Receives Several Letters.

Cape Town, Aug. 31.—It is said in Africander circles here that in spite of persistent warlike rumors, there are good prospects. It is believed that several strongly worded communications have been addressed to President Kruger, of the Transvaal republic, urging the desirability of using every effort to obtain a peaceful solution of the trouble.

London, Aug. 31.—The officials of the colonial office say no advances have been made by France looking to the abandonment of the Newfoundland treaty and fishing rights. That France would do so without a quid pro quo is said to be utterly improbable.

St. Peter's Church Closed.
Hamilton, Aug. 30.—Bishop Duomo has closed St. Peter's church where Father Geoghegan was formerly pastor. The congregation insists for the most part in believing in the innocence of the late pastor, and Rev. Wm. Behan, who was appointed to take charge during his suspension, has resigned the charge owing to the sympathy with Geoghegan. Mr. Behan was not present at a Sunday school picnic recently out Mr. Geoghegan was made the recipient of a pyre full of gold.

N.P. TRAIN WRECK

EXPRESS FROM ST. PAUL LEAVES THE TRACK.

George Johnson, Express Messenger, Was Caught Beneath a Truck and Crushed to Death.

Winnipeg, Aug. 30.—In an endeavor to escape, George Johnson, one of the best known and most popular express messengers on the Northern Pacific railway, jumped to his death yesterday afternoon. The scene of the accident was a short distance this side of St. Norbert, which is nine miles from Winnipeg on the main line of the Northern Pacific and Manitoba railways, and the wreck which was the cause of the fatality was not of serious proportions as regards rolling stock or other property.

A number of citizens were at the Northern Pacific depot from one o'clock yesterday afternoon waiting for the arrival of the St. Paul express. The train was first reported late and finally no information regarding it could be had at all until shortly after three o'clock, a light engine pulled into the yards and Conductor Vincent was seen to go into the dispatcher's and superintendent's office. A few inquisitive parties in the meantime gathered about the engine and elicited the bare statement that the train had been derailed and the express messenger killed. A wrecking train was immediately made up and sent to the scene and the train which usually does service on the Brandon local was ordered out to bring in the passengers, including the members of the Vanity Fair company, the baggage and the remains of unfortunate Messenger Johnson.

On the arrival of this train, between four and five o'clock, the particulars of the accident were available. The express was nearing the city at a very moderate rate of speed and was just approaching a small bridge, which is north of St. Norbert station a short distance, when an axle of the refrigerator truck, next to the engine, broke, and the truck immediately left the rails, dragging the car around and upsetting it. The express and baggage car met a similar fate, and was precipitated down the grade and overturned. The messenger, Mr. Johnson, was standing by the open doorway, and seeing the car ahead leave the rails jumped from his place, in the hope of saving his life. The act was most regrettable, for, on alighting, he fell backwards, and the wheels of the refrigerator car, torn from the box, jumped from the rails and crushed his left shoulder and the upper part of his body, and pinned him to the earth. The train, after a few severe shocks, came to a standstill, and the passengers, who were all shaken up badly and greatly alarmed, rushed from the cars.

DIPLOMACY NEARLY ENDED.

President Kruger's Latest Answer Very Unfavorable—Queensland Now Ready.
London, Aug. 30.—Commenting on the latest utterance of President Kruger, of the Transvaal government, as cabled to yesterday that the South African republic adheres to its latest offer and would not make any further concessions, the afternoon papers here unanimously draw attention to the increased seriousness of the Transvaal crisis. But, in the same breath, they express uncertainty regarding the nature of the concessions beyond which President Kruger will not go.

No official announcement has been made, though they are generally understood to be a five-year franchise and increased Uitlander representation. "If this is correct," the Globe says, "it cannot be long before diplomacy has to stand aside as of no further service." The Pall Mall Gazette says: "President Kruger's adherence to these would mean adherence to impossible conditions and if so, the situation has come to an ugly dead end."

The Westminster Gazette, while lamenting the immobility which it says led to the present crisis, admits that the country is within sight of war, which may shortly be as unavoidable as on the merits of the question it would be inexcusable.

Brisbane, Aug. 30.—In consequence of the increased tension in the Transvaal affair, the Queensland government is making preliminary arrangements to dispatch a contingent to South Africa.

Boundary Question.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—The report appearing in a morning paper of the likelihood of a reunion of the high commissioner at Washington to frame a report to congress is not confirmed here. Canada has taken her stand in the Alaskan boundary matter, and till that is disposed of, other issues cannot be touched.

Canadian Author Dead.

Lakefield, Ont., Aug. 30.—Mrs. Catharine Parr Traill, a well known authoress, died yesterday in her 98th year at her home here. The funeral takes place Thursday.

St. Peter's Church Closed.

Hamilton, Aug. 30.—Bishop Duomo has closed St. Peter's church where Father Geoghegan was formerly pastor. The congregation insists for the most part in believing in the innocence of the late pastor, and Rev. Wm. BRITISH AUTHORITY WANTED

General Feeling of Insecurity in the Silk District of Suchu.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 30.—Recent Oriental adventures per steamer Tacoma state: Pirates recently made a raid upon the silk districts of Suchu, and the people there are agitating the substitution of British for Chinese authority. The condition of the two Kwang provinces has now for several years been disorderly and a general feeling of insecurity, both of life and of property, has for a long time been felt by the portion of the people having anything to lose. Piracies on the waterways, armed robberies in the country, and raids by bandits even in large towns have now become constant. The criminals, wearing bold with past successful ventures, now carry on their operations under the very nose of the chief officials. The extension by the pirates of their operations to vessels on the West river, flying foreign flags, is likely however, to bring the conditions of the provinces prominently before the foreign powers.

The Emperor of China is now provided with three meals a day, at each of which he is only given two kinds of vegetables and a small bowl of rice. It is even suspected that an attempt is being made to starve and make his majesty even weaker than he has been. To a confidential eunuch his majesty recently said: "My restoration to power is only a question of time, hence I am only too anxious to maintain my health and bide my time. I am only afraid that one or two traitorous ministers, who hate me, may, by their machinations, succeed in destroying me, and I have no means of counteracting their treachery."

Reports have just come of a serious riot in Chinese Tibet. The Christian and Missionary alliance have had a station there for about two years, and this has been attacked and looted by the Tibetans. The missionaries, barely escaped with their lives to Lanchow.

New Bicycle Company.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—The latest information regarding the bicycle combination indicates W. E. Massey will be president; Senator Cox, vice-president; and L. M. Jones, Toronto; E. Thomas, of the Cleveland company; Mr. Soper, of Ottawa, and E. L. Gould of Bradford, will be the new directors. The Massey-Harris bicycle works in Toronto will be closed down as a bicycle factory and will in future be operated as part of the Massey-Harris agricultural implement works. The bicycle machinery will be removed to the Junction and the factory continued there. The new company will be known as the Canada Cycle Company. The St. Catharines works will also be closed down and the machinery transferred to Bradford. The present Gould works at Bradford will be considerably extended.

Had His Neck Broken.

London, Aug. 30.—Andrew Gowanlock was killed last evening in the stable yard of the O'Neill house. Gowanlock had been drinking during the day and quarrelled in the evening with Geo. Harding and W. Dyer, two hostlers. From quarrelling they proceeded to blows and Gowanlock was struck dead by one of the men. Deceased probably received a blow on the chin, forcing his head back and breaking his neck, as death was caused by a broken neck. THE NEW ARGONAUT

THE WONDERFUL AND PRACTICAL AUTOMOBILE OF THE DEEP.

Simon Lake's New Boat Explained—
Description of This Unique Machine—Equality at Home Below as Above
Water—The Nautilus of Jules Verne Substantially Realized.

Most of us are getting pretty familiar with the autotruck and the automobile, and we understand them on land, but only a precious few of us have ever seen an automobile of the deep—an amphibious creation which can either travel safely along on the water's surface like any steam yacht, or, at will, go to the bottom and there roll along on three wheels absolutely indifferent to the storms which may rage above. Such are the powers of Simon Lake's "New Argonaut," the craft about which we heard so many interesting things a year and more ago.

A Washington correspondent says the New Argonaut is a cylindrical, cigar-shaped structure of steel surrounded by a lighter fabrication, having the graceful lines of a yacht, easily blending into the form of the main body below. The hull is somewhat like a ship's hull and has a beam at its greatest circular section of ten feet. When travelling along the surface the ship-shaped part of the craft will appear much like any ordinary yacht, save for the absence of masts, smokestacks, and the usual top hamper of such vessels. This ship-shaped superstructure is designed to reduce resistance when running on the surface, to give deck room in pleasant weather, and also to house the air and the gasoline tanks, which would otherwise crowd the inner body of the strictly working part of the craft. The only boatlike finish will be a short keel—just a collapsible affair—which is to act as an hydraulic bumper in case of collision. The center of the deck is taken up by a steel pilot-house, within which the boat will be guided in stormy weather when on the surface, and down through which will pass all of the airpipes and exhausts when the boat is engaged in subaqueous work.

The compass or binnacle is located on top of this pilot-house, and the readings of the dial are reflected below. It has been found that the compass so located beyond the moving masses of metal within the boat is very reliable, and courses once plotted on the surface can be safely followed by its guidance. This is one great difficulty in submarine navigation removed and simplified, for the many ingenious substitutes have all of them been found dangerously unreliable.

The main hull or body of the boat is of steel, three-fifths of an inch thick, supported by its circular ribs of great strength and spaced only about two feet apart. The form and method of construction make the boat able to withstand a water pressure far in excess of that under which a diver might live. The main body is divided into seven different compartments, of which three are watertight.

Compartment "A" is the operating room when the boat is on the bottom, and it is from this place that the captain controls all mechanical performances.

Compartment "B" is the diving room, when the diver passes through the doorway "D" to the bottom.

Compartment "C" is an air-lock between the diver's room and the living space, "D," by which it is possible to pass to and from the diver's room without reducing the air pressure therein.

In compartment "D" are the eight bunks and the storage lockers for the captain and crew. The beds and the lockers are comfortable affairs, and space is also left for the storage of provisions and working tools in the recesses at the sides. White paint makes everything light, while here and there a bit of decoration adds a very pleasing finish and takes away the strictly commercial side of the craft. Heavily upholstered transoms provide sitting accommodations and comfortable lounging places when the three come for a smoke and a rest between labors.

Compartment "E" is the large operating room, within which are controlled the pumps and the diving apparatus, and there on the side walls are hung the various gauges, which are to record water pressures, air pressures, the depth of the craft, the amount of water in the tanks and the heel or list of the craft, and her speed either through the water or along on the bottom of the sea.

Compartment "F" is the cloakroom, where the meals will be prepared by the aid of a cunningly devised gasoline range, and the meals will be tucked away some of the edible stores and a good-sized refrigerator.

Compartment "G" is the main engine room, within which are comprised all of the motive machinery of the ship, which will consist principally of two White & Middleton gas engines of 60 horsepower, also a smaller auxiliary pumping engine of four horse-power, and a dynamo of output enough to supply the needful for the searchlights at the bow, the entire interior lighting of the vessel and for the hand lamps carried by the divers, when working at some distance from the craft.

Under the floor of the several compartments will be carried the water ballast by which the vessel's buoyancy will be controlled; and the third or after wheel, which is journaled into the rudder shaft, will serve to guide the boat whether aloft or on the bottom.

The two forward wheels, which will have big teeth in their rims, will be driven by the same engines that work the propeller, and when the bottom is hard and the current too strong to make good headway by the propeller alone, these great wheels, each of which weigh a ton, will be put in motion and made to grip the bottom earth. When there is no current to combat and the bottom is smooth and firm the vessel's buoyancy will be reduced only enough to make her rest very lightly upon the ground, the great wheels will be disconnected from the engines and allowed to revolve freely, and the propeller will furnish the driving power. Should there be a heavy current the vessel's buoyancy will be further reduced, and her pressure upon the bottom varied all the way from a few pounds to a ton or more, as the case requires, and then the wheels will have power applied to them.

Under ordinary circumstances when the place has been reached where it is desired to descend to the bottom water enough is taken into the tanks to bring the ship-shaped part of the boat down to a level with the water's surface. Then the two anchoring weights—"I" and "J"—are lowered by wire rope from within their recesses and under the power control of their winding drums till they have settled upon the bottom; more water is taken into the tank to make up for the loss of quite two tons of dead weight; and then the vessel is slowly drawn to the bottom by winding in the wire rope over the drums again.

Should it be desired to hold the vessel anywhere between the bottom and the surface, all that is necessary is to stop winding in the wire rope, and there she will remain without hindrance. The vessel can be sunk simply by taking in enough water, but she is apt to be swept along by the current and carried some way before the bottom is reached. Should the vessel intend to travel after reaching the bottom the anchors are drawn in, the buoyancy is reduced to suit the circumstances, and all is ready for progress along the bottom.

The great searchlights at the bow send their piercing rays along through the inky depths of the sea, lighting up the water before and the ground ahead and beneath the boat to such an extent as to make a collision possible only in case of gross negligence on the part of the navigator.

It has been found that the first "Argonaut" went along without hindrance in light mud and deep, and she had no difficulty in surmounting anything over which she could poke her nose. This is due to the fact that, under ordinary conditions, the vessel has a dead weight on the bottom of only a few pounds, and the driving force of the propeller was enough to lift her up and make her ride over such obstacles, just as a balloon inflated almost to the rising point will skip lightly over the ground. It is to be seen how the force of collision would also be greatly reduced by this practical absence of corresponding weight, and in this lies one of the safeguards of subaqueous navigation.

The New Argonaut is a practical, common-sense submergence boat, and a very Klondike like an old doorstop for her easy recovery. As Jules Verne himself has said, she is his Nautilus: substantially realized.

Wier Than the Father.

Endurance of Arab Horses.

A good Arabian horse can enter in the desert for 34 hours without food and 48 hours in winter without drinking.

IT HAS 598 STEPS.

The Stairway in the Tower of the Philadelphia City Hall.

A novel diversion is about to be instituted at the city hall. Within a few weeks this noble pile, already distinguished as being the highest municipal building in the world, will contain the highest continuous stairway in the world, and tourists of their muscular ability in climbing the stone steps of the Bunker Hill monument at Charlestown, the Washington monument or the monument to General Brock, near Queens-town, Ont., will tell their friends of their feat in ascending the 598 steps which lead from the seventh floor of the city hall to the landing about the feet of William Penn.

Tourist climbing is one of the fads of tourists. Hitherto the Bunker Hill monument, with its four hundred odd stone steps, and the Washington monument, which has a few more, have represented the acme of opportunity for tests of physical endurance. Ascent or descent of these steps has been boasted of, and, though both so cramp the muscles of the leg that the climber for an hour afterward is hardly able to walk upright, the distinction has required the pain.

The building commission is pushing forward the work on the tower stairway, and within two months it is expected that it will be in readiness for climbers. It will extend from the seventh to the sixteenth floor and will contain just 598 steps of iron arranged about a square central shaft, in which will run an electric elevator. To reach the tower stairway the climber may mount the 245 granite stairs in the hanging stairways at the northern end of the building, thus making a total climb of 743 steps.

John Bunker, assistant superintendent of the city hall, said recently: "Entrance to the tower has been temporarily stopped because of the work being done on the stairway. We are pushing this work, however. It is really surprising how many persons make application to ascend the tower."

The old elevator now in the tower will be kept in place for the remainder of the year at least to accommodate those who prefer to ride, but early next year we expect to install an electric elevator which will make the trip in less than half the time required by the antiquated lift now in use. The new stairway will be an easy one to ascend for the tourist climbers, because it will be frequently broken by platforms. There will then exist a continuous stairway for the 547 feet which the tower is high.

A Remarkable Case.

Matthias Steinberger, who is at present living with his grandparents, Percy W. Holcomb, near Postville, is a veteran of the Mexican war. In one of the charges of his regiment at the battle of Resaca de la Palma, his horse stumbled and fell, and, throwing him to the ground, knocked him senseless and paralyzed his spine.

When he was taken to the hospital, he was able to tell everything that took place up to the time he was hurt. But after that everything was blank. He has always maintained that he was about 21 years old. He has, in fact, been blind all his life.

The other day he was struck on the head and lost consciousness, and when he came to a peculiar expression was noticed on his face, as if he had just awakened from a long sleep. The first question that he asked was, "What are all those wires up there on the poles for?" He was greatly astonished at the electric cars and bicycles.

He says, "I guess that the world has gone so far ahead of me that I will never catch up with it."—Toledo Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Iron Felt.

A new insulating material known as iron felt, and made in Germany, is being extensively used in Europe for a number of purposes. For the prevention of vibration it is said to be quite successful, and it is placed between engines and their foundations and also between rails and sleepers. It consists of the larger and stouter woolen fibers treated with a by-product of petroleum and then coated with gelatin and India rubber and vulcanized. After pressure it is used in the form of plates somewhat over two square feet in area, and from one-half to two inches in thickness. The plates are said to be extremely elastic and imperishable, and have a surface so hard as not to be cut by the sharp edges of bolt heads or iron girders.—Public Opinion.

Artificial Daylight.

Tesla has succeeded in making artificial daylight. In his laboratory he shows numerous balls of glass of different sizes which look like miniature suns. The balls are empty; there are no wires in them nor outside of them. They do not burn the fingers. The light does not hurt the eyes as sunlight and ordinary electric light do. A number of leading New York and Chicago photographers will have this artificial daylight supplied to their studios. Tesla says: "The reason I have chosen to introduce the new daylight to the photographers first is that I believe them to be the severest critics in the matter of light. If it succeeds with them a new light will succeed everywhere."

Indian Trick in Lasso.

The Filipinos wrap their cartridges to make them fit various barrels. This adaptation of means to ends must amuse the old Indian fighters in General Otis' army, to whom the principle is by no means a new one. The same trick has long been used by our own Indians, who wrap Winchester cartridges with rawhide and shoot them from their old 50 caliber Martini and Sharp's carbines.

SAIRY SPENCER'S REVOLT

By CARRIE BLAKE MORGAN.

"And a'posi, that after a bit you'd hear some other woman's voice a-calling the chickens and some other woman's hands rattlin' the stove lids around, a-startin' a fire to cook supper for your husband. You'd most likely want to get up out of your grave then, but you couldn't. You'd just have to lay there and hear things go on without you day in and day out, year in and year out, and watch yourself goin' to pieces inch by inch and crumbin' to dust. There wouldn't be much rest about that, Mis' Spencer, would there, now?"

Mrs. Spencer arose with the slow painfulness of stiffened rheumatic joints and turned a shocked, resentful face upon her visitor.

"Mis' Howard," she said sternly, "if I found a fellow mortal in trouble and couldn't think of a single comfortin' thing to say to her, I'd go away and leave her alone. I wouldn't try to knock out the last prop from under her. If a body can't b'lieve in the rest that's in the grave, I'd like to know what we can b'lieve in. I never heard such scandalous doctrine since I was born."

She turned abruptly and went into the house, closing the door behind herself and her unorthodox neighbor, and listened until the sound of receding footsteps died away.

"There, I hope she's gone, with her croakin'. I was that afeard she'd hang around and hinder me too long. Land, 4 o'clock a'ready!" as a timepiece in an inner room gave four hard, metallic strokes. She hurried into the bedroom and came out rolling a pair of heavy gray blankets into an uncouth bundle. Then she took a bottle from a shelf in the pantry and filled it with rich, sweet milk. As she put the cork in she suddenly stopped and listened, then opened the door a little way and listened again intently.

"Wheels!" she ejaculated. "Now, if it should be them, goodness help me to get into the cornfield before they come in sight."

She caught up the blankets and snatched a raspberry pie in its tin plate from the table. Thus equipped for flight she opened the door and went hurriedly out. At the foot of the steps the brood of little chickens sat her in full force, fluttering around her feet and impeding her progress.

"Shoot! Shoot!" She pushed them aside with one foot and waved the pie at them frantically, but they followed close at her skirts, with dismal chirps that went to her heart.

"Poor little things, how well they know it's their supper time! If I'd only had time to feed 'em. Like as not nobody else'll think to do it."

She hesitated and looked back at them pityingly. But the rattle of wheels sounded closer now, and her heart hardened. She went on again, striving to redouble her speed, but the blankets were cumbersome, and the raspberry was shedding its sticky juice up her sleeve.

Her arms were year to breaking and tears and perspiration mingled in the hollows of her cheeks when at last she reached the cornfield and stumbled between the tall green rows. She dropped the blankets and almost fell upon them in her exhaustion. The bottle and pie were allowed to shift for themselves, and the latter poured out the last remnant of its crimson juice at the roots of a corn hill.

Presently Mrs. Spencer sat up and listened again. She could no longer hear the sound of wheels nor any sound save the rustling of the millions of corn blades in the great field about her and the voice of a meadow lark singing from the top of a tall charred stump near by. She sat still and rested a little longer. Then she stood up and tried to see the house, but the tasseled tops of the corn were two feet above her head. She made her way cautiously to the outer row and peered out between the stalks, but the low sun beat straight into her eyes, and the higher ground of the meadow, full of haycocks, intervened. She could see only the weather worn roofs of the house and barn. She crept back and took up her burden again of blankets and bottle and pie and trudged on deeper into the sheltering labyrinth of corn. When she had put half the width of the field between herself and the house, she felt safe for the time being and sat down again to rest and bide her time.

Her objective point was an old dog-bone in the face of a stony ridge just beyond the cornfield. It had been constructed for a potato cellar and was used only for storing those edible tubers in winter. From March to November it was empty and forgotten, given over to rats and spiders. She had chosen it for her refuge over all the other nooks and crannies on the farm because of its isolation. No roving member of the objectionable "gang" would be likely to stumble upon it and discover her. But it was well up the face of the ridge and visible from the house, so she did not think it best to risk discovery by approaching it in open day.

She partly unrolled the blankets and lay down upon them, turning her worn face up to the sky with a deep drawn breath of rest and a delicious new sense of freedom. Her close environment of tall corn shut out the horizon, but she knew when the sun had sunk below it by the tinted glow that overspread her small vista of sky and the fresher breeze that came whispering among the corn blades, precursor of the coming night.

After a time dark shadows began creeping along the furrows, as if striving to steal upon her unawares, and in the purpling firmament above two or three pale stars took form and blinked coldly down at her. She sat up and diverged, and her heart sank a little at thought of the potato cellar and the lonely night.

"Dew's a-fallin'!" she exclaimed in dismay, with care for her rheumatism, and as quickly as might be she gathered up her belongings and resumed her flight. In the fast gathering night the way to the potato cellar seemed long and rough, and when she had reached it she found it a stronghold defended by wild blackberry vines that she must tear away with her naked hands before she could gain an entrance.

The clumsy door opened outward, and yielded only inch by inch to her repeated jerks. Each time a blackberry vine was wrenched out by the roots it brought down a shower of loosened gravel upon her defenseless head from the crumbling banks that towered high on either side, but at last a dark aperture yawned before her wide enough to give her entrance. She wondered why she had not foreseen the need of a candle and some matches as she groped her way within and pulled the door shut. As she did so there came a great roar and crash of falling gravel outside. It sounded a perfect avalanche, and she congratulated herself on having escaped it.

The atmosphere of the little cave-like place was close and musty from long lack of ventilation, and Mrs. Spencer found the abrupt change from the pure outer air almost stifling. She decided that she must reopen the door and leave it so through the night, but when she attempted to do it she found the door immovable, held shut by the mass of gravel that had fallen against it. The discovery left her agast.

"Why, now—if I can't get out and nobody has the least notion where I am, why—it's most like been buried alive!" The situation was disheartening, but the direct forebodings must yield to extreme bodily weariness, and soon she had spread her blankets on the dry straw of a potato bin and stretched her aching frame upon them.

For an hour or more her mental worry and her "rheumatiz" united in tormenting her; then came sleep and wood her to rest with the welcome thought of no breakfast to get in the morning and no disturbing voice to break in upon her slumbers with the announcement of "gettin' up time."

But she dreamed, and all through her dream sounded the chirping of hungry little chickens, the lowing of un milked cows and the slow, heavy tread of her husband's feet coming up the lane at evening time. "Tired and hungry and you not here to get supper for him," droned the reproachful voice of her neighbor, running like a dirge through the other sounds and making of the dream a wretched, haunting nightmare.

"Drat that Mis' Howard! I'll never speak to her again," was Mrs. Spencer's first waking thought. A thin shaft of daylight with the yellow glint of a well risen sun in it was forcing its way into the cellar through a crevice an inch wide above the door. Involuntarily Mrs. Spencer sat up and listened for the familiar sounds of her dream. But she heard only the hickering of a pair of weasels in the blackberry vines outside and the scurry of a rat that scampered across the cellar floor and plunged into his hole in a corner. This served to draw her attention to her surroundings.

In an opposite bin lay some sorry looking potatoes, with long, ghostly white sprouts and a winding sheet of cobwebs. Near the center of the earth floor stood a battered old sheet iron stove with some rusty joints of pipe rising shakily to the thatched roof, ten feet above. The hired men had set it up during the cold snap in March and built a fire in it to keep themselves warm while they cut potatoes for seedling. A dozen matches and a clay pipe half full of burned tobacco lay on its hearth forgotten.

Mrs. Spencer felt a little light headed when she stood up, and thus was brought to remember that she had eaten nothing since noon of the preceding day. She looked about for the pie and bottle of milk. The latter was intact, but the former had vanished, leaving only its tin plate as tangible evidence that it had existed. Two little know-

She partly unrolled the blankets and lay down upon them, turning her worn face up to the sky with a deep drawn breath of rest and a delicious new sense of freedom. Her close environment of tall corn shut out the horizon, but she knew when the sun had sunk below it by the tinted glow that overspread her small vista of sky and the fresher breeze that came whispering among the corn blades, precursor of the coming night.

After a time dark shadows began creeping along the furrows, as if striving to steal upon her unawares, and in the purpling firmament above two or three pale stars took form and blinked coldly down at her. She sat up and some draft, but refrained and corked it up again resolutely.

During the long hours of that forenoon she attacked the door repeatedly, but always futilely, and finally, when the sweltering August sun had passed the meridian and was beating down mercilessly on her retreat, she gave up, and, bursting into a wild fit of weeping, she crept back into the bin and lay down on her blankets.

Hours later, when she had wept a great deal and slept a little, she opened her swollen eyes and saw the red gold of sunset shining in above the door.

"Twenty-four hours," she said to herself, and a great longing came upon her to know how "Abra'm" and the old home were doing without her. She dragged the apple box close to the door and mounted upon it, thus bringing her eyes to a level with the crevice. There lay the farmhouse and its peaceful surroundings spread out below her like a quaint, sun kissed old picture; but, oh, how distant it was, how far beyond the sound of her voice, even though she should shriek aloud! The broad meadow and the great field of rustling corn lay between.

At first there was no sign of life about the place, except the patient cows standing in the lane waiting for the bars to be let down; but presently, while she waited and watched for the men to come in from their work in the far north meadow, she decried a curl of smoke rising from the kitchen chimney. A queer, ghastly little caricature of a smile flashed across her face.

"Now, if I was near enough to hear the stove lids rattle," she whispered, "I could 'most imagine I was dead and in my grave, like Mis' Howard said."

For a long time she stood with her eyes at the crevice and her hands grasping the rough frame of the cellar door, watching that changing, darkening spiral of smoke. Once the kitchen door opened, and a woman stood for an instant in sight. The watcher squinted her eyes in a desperate endeavor to concentrate her gaze.

"Is 'pose it's Mis' Rhynearsen," she muttered, with a resentful snap in her tone. "It's just like her cheek to take possession of a body's house and act as if she owned it! I can't see how Abra'm can like them Rhynearsens so well; they're such pestiferous folks. To think of her there, a-livin' high off the fresh bread and cakes and pies that I baked, and the cheese I made, and the butter I churned, and me here, a-starvin'!"

The contrast was too pitiful. In all her hard, meager life she had never before known the pangs of hunger and thirst. Her eyes filled and the vision was for a time shut out. When she looked again, the curling smoke was scarcely discernible and all the angles of the old house were toned down by the softening shadow of approaching night.

Inverted Diet.
An amusing story is told of an old time soldier who loved liquor better than food, and was bound to have his diet according to his taste. It was in the days when British soldiers provided themselves with rations out of their pay. To insure the proper feeding of the men a strict inspection of the daily mess was instituted. It was found that unless this was done many soldiers would go without meat in order that they might have money to buy grog.

Donald loved whisky, and could live very well on oatmeal. Therefore he eschewed butcher's meat. But at the daily mess it was essential that he should have meat before him. For a long time Donald saved his money, and yet, to all appearance, lived up to the requirements. When the officer went his round Donald had his mess before him. It was tripe, tripe, and tripe again for a change.

"Do you always eat tripe?" asked the inspecting officer, becoming a little suspicious.

"Always, your honor," replied Donald.

The officer stuck a fork into the dish before him.

"Well, Donald," he remarked, "I never before saw tripe with buttons on it."

The meat proved to be a slice from a pair of leather breeches.—Youth's Companion.

THE KISSING BUG.

Ha, ha! I'm a jolly young bug. I love to creep and to bug. The sweet lips of girls. Whose teeth are as pearls. Or get blood from the nose of a pug.

I have come from a land far away. But you let I have come here to stay; And soon you will see What a lover I'll be.

For I've got such a sweet, winning way. If I see a nice girl in the park, I'll make for her, just for a lark; I'll alight on her lip, And the honey I'll sip.

But I'll leave behind my mark. We all have our object in life. And some live in peace, some in strife; But I live in the blood of a foe. For I roam the world over And am ever kissing sweethearts or wives.

I know it's a criminal act. But that doesn't alter the fact. That we'll all take a risk To obtain a sweet kiss. But it should be accomplished with tact.

Just wait till her lips are like larks. And her arms are as convulsed as snakes. Then snuffly you take it. And the blood, I will take it. Will make you jump out of your socks.

I'm fond of the drink, dark or fair. But I "love" those with carry hair. For they're usually a trouble. At which I can't smile a smile.

Though it makes them as mad as a bear. As I told you, I've come here to stay. So it's no use to murmur or pray. For I'll kill 'fore your eyes. Your sisters and wives And laugh at you over the way.

Oh, yes, I'm a jolly spring bug. Who lives on a kiss and a bug! My kinder's the nearest. The sharpest and meanest. That you ever saw on a mug.

A PLAIN TALK TO SUFFERING WOMEN, AND SUGGESTIONS FOR ACQUIRING HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Almost all the suffering that woman endures can be traced to the irregularities of the delicate and sensitive feminine organism, which is intimately connected with every part of the system. If the monthly flow is not perfectly healthful shows itself by pains and aches in the limbs and back, distressing bearing-down feelings, blotches on the face, neck and arms, headaches, and tired, despondent feelings.

A healthy woman is never irregular. She escapes the suffering at the monthly periods, and is not exhausted by this natural action. The symptoms mentioned above, and which so many women endure, tell of exhausted nerves. When the nerves are weak the whole system suffers the strain of the monthly action, which should be easy and natural. Set the nerves right and the pains and aches will disappear. There will be no more irregularities when the whole body is under the control of healthy nerves.

The most successful restorative that science has ever devised for exhausted nerves is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it has proven so wonderfully beneficial to women that it is now considered specific for ailments peculiar to women.

Besides restoring and revitalizing the nerves Dr. Chase's Nerve Food makes new, red corpuscles in the blood. With the blood thus pure and rich women scarcely notice the effect of the monthly action which is at other times so weakening.

Under this treatment the form rounds out, pale cheeks become plump and rosy, and there is new vitality and elasticity in every movement.

Health makes woman beautiful and attractive. Health can only come to suffering women when the nerves are perfectly restored. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food restores the nerves, enriches the blood, and makes woman healthy, beautiful and happy. 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

INTER-MIGRATION.

The following suggestion from the Edmonton Bulletin might be followed by more districts than Alberta.—In view of the expected early completion of the St. Mary's irrigating canal which will make productive a large area of excellent land in the neighborhood of Lethbridge, the people of that town are taking active measures to secure the occupation of this land by settlers. To this end they engaged the services of the Rev. Chas. McKillop, Presbyterian minister at Lethbridge for a number of years. Mr. McKillop concentrated his principal efforts on a part of the County of Renfrew, Ont., where he was well known, and as a result is bringing twenty-seven settlers from there to occupy irrigation lands near Lethbridge. Of course the number of settlers coming at once is only a small part of the good work done by Mr. McKillop. By getting the advantages of the district which he represented before the public at large, and particularly in getting a movement commenced, a great deal more is accomplished than can be measured. The difficult part of the work is to get the start made.

The example of Lethbridge might very well be followed by other localities in Alberta. Whether right or wrong it is part of the settled policy of the present, as it was of the late Dominion Government, not to endeavor to attract settlers from the older provinces of Canada to the west. As a result, while our immigration agents are working in the States to bring settlers to the Northwest, immigration agents from the States are just as busily at work attracting settlers from eastern Canada to the States. It would surely be of advantage to Western Canada to have as large a settlement as possible of people who are in full sympathy with our social and educational system and with our ideas of municipal and general government, to say nothing of their acknowledged thrift, industry and power of adapting themselves to circumstances. The United States census returns show that Canadians have been going to the States at the rate of 30,000 a year for thirty years—and they are still going. If our government cannot or will not do anything towards working in this nearest most desirable and most profitable immigration field it would be well for us to consider if we might not very well follow the example of Lethbridge and in self-protection if for no other reason do a little something for ourselves.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Under the above heading the Regina Leader reprints our editorial re agricultural shows of two weeks ago, in which it was suggested that the Moose Jaw and Regina Agricultural Societies should amalgamate for exhibition purposes. If the two Agricultural Societies referred to are of the same opinion as The Leader and The Times, we would further suggest that the matter be taken up at an early date, and not left until next summer, when it will be too late. Let our farmers and those interested think the matter over and be prepared to act when the time comes.

Last week the Regina Board of Trade had the privilege of entertaining a large party of delegates from Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska, representing farming communities in those States who are desirous of bettering their condition. They were given a drive through the Regina district and shown the lands open for homesteading. They did not seem to be able to understand the free homestead regulations, the idea of receiving 160 acres of land free gratis and for nothing was altogether too much for them. They said that if the Government was giving away land it must be only the worthless land which they could not sell. The Dominion system of survey, however, was explained to them and they were taken to open land south of the town and told that they had nothing to do but to enter for it, fulfill the requirements and the land would become their own property. They appeared to be a shrewd, observant lot of men and any impressions which they may carry away from them will be the result of close and careful observation. There is yet plenty of land open for homesteading in the Moose Jaw district—land that cannot be excelled for farming purposes on this continent. Therefore, we cannot see why the citizens of Moose Jaw do not bestir themselves and make some effort to help the advancement of the district, and, indirectly, themselves. It is the English speaking people that we want here, and opportunities like this have been passing by our door all summer. Surely Moose Jaw will stand a chance with any other part of the Northwest.

The Macleod Gazette in a recent issue deals with the application of the Northwest Government's Local Improvement Ordinance to the ranching country. Some think a tax on cattle would be more equitable than a tax on land. The Gazette points out that if that system were adopted the resident of the district whose capital, enterprise, and intelligence were developing the country would pay all the taxes, while the speculative land owners would escape. In other parts of the Territories, of $40,000 collected for road improvements, $11,000 was collected from non resident owners, who under a provision to tax only personal property would have escaped. In the ranching country the tax is $2.00 per quarter section, or 14c. per acre. The money will be expended within the Local Improvement District from which it is raised, to complete and improve a system of freeways, to improve the watersupply for stock and for domestic purposes, and to improve the roads. In dealing with this question in the region of large land holdings, accompanied by heavy investments of capital, the North-West Government has shown a desire to meet the needs of the country as they exist, and have manifested no small amount of courage.

Mr. George Johnson, the Dominion Statistician, an old newspaper man himself, has written an article on the press of Canada, from which the following information is taken: There are in the Dominion 113 daily, 6 tri-weekly, 57 semi-weekly, 3 bi-weekly, 789 weekly newspapers, and three that come out semi-occasionally. In addition to these, there are 27 semi-monthly publications, 210 monthly, 10 quarterly, and two others, one appearing every other month and one taking life so leisurely that it presents itself to its readers only once in six months. The total periodical press equipment of the country numbers 1,219 publications, including The Klondyke Nugget and The Midnight Sun, of Yukon, the two most northerly of our newspapers. In 1893 Canada had published within her borders, as "instruments of light and leading," 919 newspapers and other periodicals. In five years the development has been 30 per cent.; roughly, one-third more. The daily papers have increased by 21, the semi-weekly and tri-weekly by 30 and the weekly by 193.—Printer and Publisher.

As an indication of the growth of the Kootenays, the increase during the last two years in the amount of meat used is a good indication. In conversation with Mr. McInnes, of McInnes & Co., a few days ago, that gentleman informed us that two years ago about seventy head of cattle per month was the amount of fresh beef consumed in the Kootenays, while to-day over twelve hundred head per month were required to supply the demand. The greater portion of these come from the Northwest Territories, and this great increase in demand has been a good thing for the farmers and ranchers of the Northwest, as to-day cattle buyers have to pay from $8 to $12 more per head for beef than a year ago.

Advice to Consumptives

There are three great remedies that every person with weak lungs, or with consumption itself, should understand. These remedies will cure about every case in its first stages; and many of those more advanced. It is only the most advanced that are hopeless. Even these are wonderfully relieved and life itself greatly prolonged.

What are these remedies? Fresh air, proper food and of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Be afraid of draughts but not of fresh air. Eat nutritious food and drink plenty of milk. Do not forget that Scott's Emulsion is the oldest, the most thoroughly tested and the highest endorsed of all remedies for weak throats, weak lungs and consumption in all its stages.

and considerably more than at any time during the past fourteen years. At the present rate of growth, in another year the Kootenays will consume all the beef raised in the Northwest, unless the farmers and ranchers greatly increase their herds.—Cranbrook Herald.

The C.P.R. dividend of 4 per cent. is said by the company's organ to be giving great dissatisfaction to British investors. Well there is nothing novel in that, it is the normal and natural mental condition of the British investor who belongs to the genus hog in all matters relating to self interest and profit. But let us see from his own point of view whether or not the British grumper has anything to complain about. Consols and other first class investments at home yield barely 2½ per cent. and it is well known that financiers find a rapidly increasing difficulty in securing a field for the enormous sums accruing from rent, interest and profit. A few years ago C.P.R. ordinary stock paid nothing. To-day it pays, what? Four per cent. did you say? Stop a bit! This is on stock and water, and on stock bought all the way from 40 to par—it is safe to say it equals 10 per cent. on all money invested. How much more, let the initiated say. No, we have no tears to shed over the British investor.—Ex.

"Is there room in the professions for young men?" and "Which of the professions offer the best opportunities for success?" are questions that thousands of lads are constantly asking," writes Barton Cheney in the September Ladies' Home Journal. "Neither is hard to answer. There are more opportunities for successful careers—fame and large pecuniary rewards—in the learned professions to-day than ever before. To the other inquiry I would reply that the profession offering the best opportunity is the one for which the young man has the strongest liking. The choice of a profession is of supreme importance, and a young man should be governed in making the selection solely by his own preference. If he chooses the work he likes best, he will, consequently, be able to do that work with greater success than any other."

How many bushels of wheat will your field yield per acre? Go out into the field when the grain is filled out and measure off an exact square foot. Take all the heads in that square foot and shell out the wheat. Count the kernels of wheat you now have and every thirty-three grains indicates one bushel per acre. If you get 330 grains the yield will be ten bushels per acre. If you get 336 grains, you will get twelve bushels per acre. This is the basis used by adjusters of cyclone insurance, and is very nearly accurate, but will vary if the kernels are larger or smaller than the average, or if the grain is growing up unevenly.

Whatever advantages the elevator system may have as a matter of convenience, they certainly cannot counter-balance the danger of leaving the grain interests of the North-West in the hands of one gigantic corporation, put in a position to exact any toll it may choose from the agriculturist. Private elevators with reasonable competition, or elevators owned by the Government, may be all right, but no system can be other than mischievous that engenders and strengthens monopoly of the grain trade of the West.—Brantford Examiner.

The London News wrestles with the Filipino question thus: "There is something not clearly understood about the Philippines business. Filipinos are debarred from entering the United States on the ground that they are aliens. In their native country they are shot down because it is said they are in revolt. Now the question is, how can an alien people so long as they stay in their own country be in revolt again at a foreign country? It is too much for us."

The Edmonton Bulletin points out that the Free Press of Winnipeg is in its 26th volume, but it does not yet know whether farmers should have the right to use any means they please to load their grain on to railway cars. It has a two-column article devoted to an exposition of what it does not know on the subject, thereby proving (?) the necessity of a commission of enquiry—as to whether or not farmers are entitled to the most elementary rights of ordinary citizens.

On the grain elevator question, W. W. Ogilvie, the great miller, recently told the Free Press that as far as he was concerned he wished to see absolutely no restriction placed upon the farmers regarding the handling of their grain. It made not the slightest difference whether the grain was loaded through flat warehouses or not. He said most positively that his company was not a party to any combine whatever.

A Montreal despatch says the C. P. R. directorate has decided to put aside a considerable sum each year to improve stock in the Territories.

Cupid breaks his bow at the sight of a face full of pimples. Hollow cheeks, sunken eyes, and a sallow complexion will defy his best intentions. Beauty is more than skin deep. The skin is merely the surface on which is written in plain characters the condition of the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is good for the complexion because it makes the whole body healthy,—because it clears and purifies the blood, makes the digestion strong and clears out impurities of all kinds. By increasing the ability to assimilate nutritious food, and by the infusion of its own ingredients it enriches the blood and so makes solid, healthy flesh. It cures diseases of the lungs, liver, stomach, bowels, skin and scalp, simply because all these diseases spring from the same cause—a disordered digestion and consequent impure blood.

The Prince Albert town council is in trouble. A week ago last Friday, the town clerk, J. M. Coombs, was served with a summons, citing the board to appear before a judge of the Supreme Court and show cause why they should pay over to Mayor McLellan the sum of $75.00 to defray his expenses on his recent trip to Ottawa in connection with the Dauphin railway, as passed by said board previously. The above was the case, the Mayor says, is the culmination of a good deal of gossip in regard to this grant, some rate-payers being of the opinion that the expenditure is unjustifiable and an unwarranted waste of town funds, and to prevent this the step was taken as above stated. The injunction proceedings against the town were before Mr. Justice McGuire in chambers on Monday last. After hearing the arguments of counsel His Honor reserved judgment on the questions at issue.

MR. ROSS RETURNS HOME FROM THE PEACE RIVER COUNTRY.

The Commissioners for the Athabasca Indian Treaty
Have Completed their Work and are Now en Route Home
—"Our Member" the First to Arrive.

Among the passengers on Sunday morning's Imperial Limited was Mr. Jas.
H. Ross, Commissioner of Public Works and M.L.A. for this district, en route home to Regina from the Peace River country where he has been making treaty with the Indians as one of the Commissioners appointed by the Dominion Government for that purpose. Mr.
Ross, and his fellow commissioner, Mr.
J. A. J. McKenna, of the Indian Department, accompanied by Insp. Snyder, arrived at Edmonton on the 9th. They of last week, having completed their part of treaty making in the district of Athabasca, and reported that Commissioner Laird, who had gone to Fond du Lac at the eastern end of Lake Athabasca, had been successful there, and is also on his way to the landing a few days behind.

In reporting their arrival the Edmonton Bulletin says:—By the operations of the Commissioners the Indian title is extinguished throughout the territory marked on the map of Canada as the provisional district of Athabasca, which is the country drained by the Athabasca river from the Landing north and by the Peace river from the Rock mountains northeastward to the shores of Great Slave Lake. The territory is of great area and vast and varied resources. It differs not radically from the Athabasca area, but is more extensive, timber land in many localities, and mineral deposits of many kinds of yet unknown value.
All are now open to the enterprise of civilization, under the full legal administration of the government of Canada.

The Indians treated with were of the Cree, Chipewyan and Beaver tribes, the Crees in the south, the Beavers in the west and Chipewyans in the north and east. Some difficulty in dealing with them arose from the fact that they had very loose tribal organization. Individuality was more strongly developed amongst them than among the Indians of the

The village blacksmith is usually considered the type of good health.
He is healthy and dies frequently in early youth. No man, not even the most robust, can afford to neglect his health, which is his most precious possession. The man who does so will later pay the price of his neglect in some serious or fatal malady. When a man is losing his appetite, that he passes restless nights, that he awakens in the morning refreshed and without anxiety or mental or bodily vigor, when he is troubled with headaches, nervousness or biliousness, it is time for him to take serious thought for his health.

These symptoms are by no means trivial, and are indicative of disorders that may lead to consumption, nervous prostration, malarial troubles or some serious blood disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best of all medicines for men and women who suffer in this way. It refreshes the system, makes the digestion perfect, the liver active and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the greatest of all nerve tonics. It is the great blood purifier and flesh-builder. It cures of per cent. of all cases of consumption, weak lungs, bronchitis, spitting of blood, obstinate coughs and kindred ailments. It is also an unfailing cure for nervous exhaustion and prostration. At all medicine stores.

Mrs. Rebecca F. Gardner, of Graham, York Co., Va., writes: "When I was married I weighed 125 pounds. I was healthy and reduced in health and broke out with a disease which my doctor said was cancer. I felt as if I was going to die. I began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and now I weigh 140 pounds and am well."
Constipation often causes sickness. Dr.
Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation.
One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe.
They are the sugar-coated, and bilious granules, in little vials. Druggists have nothing else "just as good." They regulate the Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

ROSSLAND'S GREETING

To the Members of the Canadian Press Association.

The following little poem, which appeared in the Rossland Miner on the occasion of the visit of the Canadian Press Association, is from the pen of our old townsman, Mr. W. J. Nelson, and will be read with interest by his many Moose Jaw friends:—

GREETING TO THE PRESS.

Twixt seven hills the city stands,
The Hub of Kootenay;
Proud of her worth; proud of her birth
And golden destiny.

Twixt lofty peaks she builds a home,
With trustful energy.
Vigorous and bold; her wealth of gold Ensures prosperity.

'Mid tow'ring heights she sits enthroned,
In stately prominence;
Queen of the West! She has been blest
With rich inheritance.

Neath iron slopes, her treasure vaults,
Rare gifts of Aeon Age;
Ophir of old had not more gold
Than is her heritage.

Relic of Palace' old time!
Child of prodigious birth!
With fond caress—she bids the Press
To learn her lasting worth.

To view the domes and minarets,
That deck Red Mountain's slope;
The glittering lights, that gild its heights,
Like harbingers of hope.

To see the mighty iron steels,
Descend the steep inclines,
With tons of ore, a valued store,
Rich products of the mines.

To view her banks, her spires and schools,
Statues of enterprise.
The busy mart, where traders bart
Their varied merchandise.

The city of a few years old,
She stands pre-eminent,
Where mountains rise to summer skies
And wed the firmament.

Columbia's El Dorado!
Released from pristine tomb!
Transformed from dearth, to richest worth,
The gift of nature's womb!

O city of mighty promise,
To evict greatness hurled!
The hidden gold within thy fold,
Will yet astound the world.

O busy scene of wondrous change,
Alone to mystery!
Though in thy prime thou yet shalt shine
In the world's history.

Within the past twelve months a couple of journalists—aggregators—the Canadian (Ontario and Quebec), and the Western Canada Press Associations—have had the privilege of a visit to the "city in the clouds." Of the last mentioned association a TIMES representative had the honor of being a member, and the pleasure of accompanying the excursion.
He can therefore speak from personal experience of Rossland's—and of Mr. Nelson's —hospitality. Our stay in Rossland was all too short, but what we saw in a few hours was enough to open the eyes of any "prairie chicken." To the more "birds," who were not so pressed for time, the visit to the camps must have been a revelation, and they no doubt have returned home convinced that British Columbia is "destined to become not only the most important part of our "grand federation, but from its geographical position, its facilities for "transport by land and sea, and its "varied and marvellous resources; it is "certain to become a golden link in the "world-encircling chain of Imperial Federation."

TOWN COUNCIL.

A Special Meeting—River Park
to be Improved.

A special meeting of the town Council was held on Wednesday evening. Present, Mayor Bogue, and Councillors Hammond, Munro, Grayson and Simpson.
Mr. R. Entwistle was refused permission to keep pigs on the flat near where the Council is making a park. The following accounts were ordered to be paid: H.
Battell, $200 for indigent expense; R.
Snoddy, $358.01 for sidewalk; J. A.
Healey & Co., $90., and H. McDougall, $43.78 for lumber. Councillors Hitchcock and Wellington were granted leave of absence for three months. The Board of Works was authorized to have a road graded from Home Street down into River Park and do such other minor improvements as are necessary.

125 MEN ENTRENCHED

From the Inroads of Dreaded Catarrh—
What Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder
Did For Mr. LeBlanc He Proves
Will Do For Others

Alfred LeBlanc, of St. Jerome, Que., was a great sufferer for years with catarrh of a very severe type. Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder rescued him when everything else had failed. To-day when he goes to his lumber camp with his 125 men, this great remedy is considered as much a necessity to comfortable camp life as anything else. It relieves cold in the head in ten minutes; prevents the growing of catarrh germs, and when they are sown, it cures them.

J. C. Wilson & Co., the extensive paper makers and wholesale stationers of Montreal and Lachine, send us advanced proofs of their two new private portrait cards, which they are about to issue.
They are very new, and lithographed in color, and will no doubt be very popular, and have a large sale, especially the Canadian design, which represents Canada, a pretty maiden in a blanket snowshoe outfit, with a pair of snowshoes in her right hand, holding the Canadian flag in her left, the bear at her feet, a wreath of autumn leaves entwining the words, "The Maple Leaf forever." The rising sun in the background, and at the bottom the motto "Patria Amamus." This card we consider the best production of its kind yet issued. The other is from the collection being put by Mrs.
Earl, the bulldog standing on the Union Jack, with the words "What we have we'll hold." They will be for sale at all booksellers, or in quantity from the publishers.

BRINGING IN THE SHEAVES

A Graphic Description of Harvesting in the Great Wheat Fields.

"With the first touch of gold on the beards a feverish activity begins. The farmer gets his binder and reaper ready and arranges with his neighbor to trade off work. Daily the thrasher creeps nearer, now east, now west, but always farther north," writes John Northern Hilliard in the September Ladies' Home Journal. "At length the men of the family ride away in a wagon to help a neighbor, returning at night with the news that 'the machine may be here any time now.' The women are thrown into a flutter of excitement, and the next day while the men are gone, the oven is filled with loaves, then with pies and cakes.
The great kettle is hung on the crane in the yard and hams are boiled. All the buttermilk is saved and sent to the men in the field, and root beer is brewed. The chickens are dressed and vegetables are gathered in anticipation of the harvest supper."

"At last the thrasher, drawn by four horses, pulls to the field, and other wagons follow, loaded with singing, shouting men and boys, most of them neighbors, only a few travelling with the machine. The last wagon will contain women and girl neighbors, who have come to help get supper and wait on the men. They come on to the house, bringing with them many dishes, knives and forks and table linen to help out the ordinary family outfit. Such shouting and laughing and joking and exchange of good news and bad news!"

"In the wireless September air the booming of the separator's cylinder rises above the steam voice of the traction engine. Six teams are in the field hauling the wheat to the machine, and the feeder, with easy majestic motion, gathers the sheaves under his arms and feeds the insatiable maw. All the afternoon the golden straw climbs and falls over in the smoky air; the chaff flies in a blinding cloud; and the grain flows like a stream sun-flecked with into the two-bushel measures, which are tipped into a wagon."

"Don'ts" For Dyspeptics Don't Cure—Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets Do—35 Cents a Box of 60 Tablets—Small Size 10 Cents
They are Equally as Pleasant to the Taste as the Ripe Fruit.

CHAPTER XVIII.

1. Don't eat much.
2. Don't eat fast.
3. Don't eat this.
4. Don't eat that.
5. These are some of the "don'ts" which the doctors prescribe.
6. The "don'ts" for dyspeptics are among the delights of existence—all the good things to eat and under the ban.
7. Break away from this habit. You can eat what you like, while Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets are effecting the cure.
8. They relieve heartburn, sour stomach, nausea, sick headache, and all distresses of indigestion in an instant, and they correct the cause of dyspepsia as spring sunshine thaws snow.
9. The fruit-pestin in Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets costs more than its weight in gold, but the Tablets are only 35 cents a box, 60 tablets in a box. Small size, 10 cents.

NERVES PARALYZED.

Nervous Prostration So Severe, Lost
Power of Hards, Side and Limbs,
But South American Nerve Beat Off Disease and Saved Her.

Minnie Stevens, daughter of T. A.
Stevens, of the Stevens Manufacturing Co., of London, was stricken down with a very severe attack of nervous prostration, which resulted in her losing the power of her limbs. She could not lift or hold anything in her hands, and other complications showed themselves. Her parents had lost hope of her recovery.
She began taking South American Nervine, and after taking twelve bottles she was perfectly restored, and enjoys good health to-day.

MOOSE JAW, N.W.T.

THE WRITERS.

Hall Caine is at his desk at 5 a. m. He works three hours and spends the rest of the day in long walks.

It is not generally known that Henrik Ibsen, the dramatist, was for many years a druggist, 50 years ago.

Professor Edward Markham of Oakland, Cal., the author of "The Man with the Hoe," will spend the summer in Europe.

William D. Howells subscribes intermittently to a clipping bureau for incidents in real life bearing upon whatever theme he may be treating in novel form.

Georg Brandes, the Danish critic, tells how Ibsen was once found in his pajamas of Russia. "A splendid country," he said. "Think of all the grand oppression they have! Only think of all the glorious love of liberty it engenders! Russia is one of the few countries in the world where men still love liberty and make sacrifices for it."

Remedy for Burns and Scalds.
Accidents are liable to occur at any time. Your child or yourself may become scalded or burned at the most unexpected moment. That is why Griffiths' Menthol Liniment should be kept in every house. Its soothing effect is felt the minute applied, and is unequalled by any other remedy. Sold by all druggists, 25 cents.

The Educated Thief.
"The testimony against you," said the police justice, "is clear and conclusive. You spend your time committing petty thefts."
"Yes, your honor," responded the prisoner, venturing to wink at the court. "I am an embodied protest against the existing condition of things. I am a round robin, your honor."
But his honor was equal to the emergency.

"For the next 90 days, anyhow," he said, frowning at the prisoner, "you won't be around robbing. You'll be a jail bird. Call the next case!"—Chicago Tribune.

Too Sure.
Mrs. Wiggins—Did Mr. Wiggins seem to be excited when he proposed to you?

A BRAVE WOMAN.
How a Drunken Husband Was Made a Sober Man by a Determined Wife.

A PATHETIC LETTER.
She writes:—"I had for a long time been thinking of trying the Samaria Prescription treatment on my husband for his drinking habits, but I was afraid he would discover that I was giving him medicine, and the thought unnerved me. I hesitated for nearly a week, but one day when he came home very much intoxicated and his week's salary nearly all spent, I threw off all fear, and determined to make an effort to save our home from the ruin I saw coming, at all hazards. I sent for your Samaria Prescription and put it in his coffee as usual, and in the morning he awoke and found the result. At noon I gave him more and also at supper. He never suspected a thing, and I then boldly kept right on giving it regularly, as I had discovered something that set upon a nerve in my body tingling with hope and happiness, and I could see a bright future ahead of me as well as a peaceful, happy home, a share in the good things of life, an attentive, loving husband, comforts, and everything else dear to a woman's heart, for my husband had told me that whiskey was vile stuff and he was taking a dislike to it. It was only too true, for before I had given him the full course he had stopped drinking altogether, but I kept giving the medicine till it was gone, and then sent for another lot to have on hand if he should relapse, as he had done on his promises before. He never has, and I am writing you this letter to tell you how thankful I am. I honestly believe it will cure the worst cases."

A pamphlet in plain, sealed envelope, sent free, giving testimonials and full information, with directions how to take or administer Samaria Prescription. Correspondence considered sacredly confidential. Address The Samaria Remedy Co., Jordan street, Toronto, Ont.

Handicapped.
"I can't say I'm a completely disappointed young man," said Mr. Bullion sternly, eyeing his eldest son, who had come home from college in disgrace. "I never expected you to amount to anything."

"No," responded the young man, with a sort of feeble resentment. "I haven't had as good a start in life as you had. You were a poor boy, with every inducement to make somebody of yourself, and I'm nothing but a rich man's son."—Chicago Tribune.

Bleke's Anti-Consumptive Syrup stands at the head of the list for all diseases of the throat and lungs. It acts like magic in breaking up a cold. A cough is soon subdued, tightness of the chest is relieved, even the worst case of consumption is relieved, while in recent cases it may be said never to fail. It is a medicine prepared from the active principles or virtues of several medicinal herbs, and can be depended upon for all pulmonary complaints.

A Prisoner's Release.

A Bright Youth of Eighteen Suffered so Badly from Asthma and Bronchitis that he was Forced to Remain in an "Eight Room for Months at a Time." See Clark's Kola Compound Cured.

Mr. L. O. Lemieux, C. P. R. Engineer, 556 Alexander street, Winnipeg, writes:—"My son, who is just eighteen years of age, has been a terrible sufferer from asthma and bronchitis during eight years. I have spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and many remedies, but he became worse each year. Many times he became so weak and the attacks so severe, that he thought each would be his last. For months at a time he has been confined to the house in an air-tight room, and continually treated with mustard plasters and poultices to keep him from choking. About the first of September we heard of Clark's Kola Compound, and purchased a half dozen bottles. While taking the first four the change was very slight, but shortly after taking the fifth he gradually became better, and could soon go out any day, and since completing the treatment has been completely cured. He goes out in the severest Manitoba weather and exposes himself to severe tests, and the attacks have not returned. I certainly have been a blessing to him, and I feel it my duty to highly recommend it to any person troubled with asthma or bronchitis."
Clark's Kola Compound is the only permanent cure for asthma yet discovered, and it has cured over 500 cases in Canada alone. Sold by all druggists. Sample sent to any address. Enclose 5 cent stamp. Address The Griffiths & Macpherson Co., 121 Church Street, Toronto.

MAUD MULLER OF THE LINKS

Maud Muller, on a summer day, Was out in the meadow raking hay. Beneath her straw hat glowed a wealth Of large, red freckles and rustic hair. Singing, she raked and didn't care The judge addressing at the tea. But at last she glanced across the links And saw the judge and sighed: "Oh, junk! 'Til he'd hit that ball that I hate They'd never succeed in getting it back!" The judge moved onward stroke by stroke Until he'd bowed behind an oak. Then he stopped for awhile and scratched his head, And Maud got scared at the things he said. He stood and gazed him in the shade, And, looking over, he saw the maid. He asked for a draft from the jug she had. "Twice earlier she'd carried out to her dad. She offered to let him use her cup. But he took the jug, and he turned it up. She thought of the job he had in town, While his Adam's apple went up and down. The judge drank on till she feared he'd burst. For the golfer gets a terrible thirst. Then he spoke of the grass, the birds, the bees, Of frolics and strokes and putts and tees. And Maud forgot the unaked jug. And wished she could have a chance to play. The judge said, "Come!" and he pinched her cheek. And she walked away with the judge's check. They went the middle along alone, So he couldn't hear what either said. And they talked and talked and talked around And sat and talked on the teeing ground. She sighed, and she thought to herself: "Ah, me! That I the judge's bride might be!"

"We'd fix up bunkers on father's place, And I'd set his brother a beautiful place. "My brother should be a cattle thief, And I'd stand with ladies and gentlemen." But the judge at last resumed his play, And Maud went back to raking hay. "Punkered," she sighed, "and stymied, too! It's a sad old world, Maud Muller, for you."

The judge moved slowly over the hill, And he thought sometimes, as judges will, He thought of Maud Muller's plump, brown arms, And her freckled nose, and her other charms. But there were his sisters, cold and proud, Up at the clubhouse with the crowd. So he left the treasure that he had found And married a woman who bussed him round. Maud married a man who couldn't spell, And she helps him harvest hay to sell; She rocks the cradle and sadly croons As she patches the holes in his pantaloons. And oft as she darts his socks she thinks Of those other folks out on the links. Alas for maiden! Alas for judge! For the hopeknot man and the household drudge!

Ah, pity them both and pity us all Who hit the earth instead of the ball! For all words and words to those who've missed, "It" is the saddest in the list!

But a time will come for man and maid When every game will be fairly played. Green fields await us all somewhere, As I suppose are never far from there. —S. E. Kiser in Chicago Times Herald.

A Clever Military Trick.
After some skirmishing between Kashmir and Peshawar the enemy took to the top of a hill, whence they could look down and from which their dislodgment was difficult. At last a village came in and told me that although the enemy occupied the top of the mountain all day they were in the habit of coming to springs half way down to cook and rest at night.

Acting on this information, I sent for some herdsmen of the district and showing them a handful of gold coins promised to give them if the men would take up a bugler and some odds and ends that they must carry with them to the top of the hill after the enemy had retired from the heights for the night. A bargain was made, and the next evening my little party was ready for starting.

The bugler was disguised as a shepherd, and the village men, three in number, carried each half a dozen pots filled with powder, with fuses attached. These they were to take to the top of the hill and lay in a row, and at 9 at night, on a signal rocket being fired from camp, they were to light all the fuses, the bugler would blow all the pots and the men, and then the whole party were to make the best of their way back to camp.

The ruse was successful. The hillmen fled in panic, and the youthful commander obtained a bloodless victory.—"Landscape of the Ganges."

THE PROFESSOR'S MISTAKE.

It Was One Merely Due to Environment.

Professor D. G. Brinton, the famous authority upon archaeology and linguistics, has given his valuable library upon these subjects to the University of Pennsylvania, together with many writings embodying his personal researches. It is doubtful, however, whether his papers include the following incident, the truth of which is vouched for:

While in Mexico on one occasion the professor was the guest of the National Historical society of that republic. One day, while discussing with a member on the street the blends of Aztec and Maya blood which enter into the average peon, the professor called attention to cranial peculiarities transmitted from these ancient races.

"There," he said, pointing to a laborer who was working on the street, "is a type in which apparently the maternal influences were Toltec and the paternal Maya or Carib."

"I see," said the member.
"Notice the man's forehead," continued the professor. "It has all the characteristics of—"
"That's that!" interrupted the supposed peon, dropping his pick. "That's that you're saying, ye long legged pervertikar! I'll have ye know me fayther was a O'Shanessney and me nayther a Finnegan."—Philadelphia Post.

CAMPERS

Should take with them a supply of Dr. Fowler's Ext. of Wild Strawberry.

Those who intend going camping this summer should take with them Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Getting wet, catching cold, drinking water that is not always pure, or eating food that disagrees, may bring on an attack of Colic, Cramps and Diarrhoea. Prompt treatment with Dr. Fowler's Strawberry in such cases relieves the pain, checks the diarrhoea and prevents serious consequences. Don't take chances of spoiling a whole summer's outing through neglect of putting a bottle of this great diarrhea doctor in with your supplies. But see that it's the genuine Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, as most of the imitations are highly dangerous.

Permanent Cure of Cancer.

MRS. GILHULA.
On the advice of friends she commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The results that followed were little short of marvellous. Her strength and vigor returned and in a short time she was completely cured. Mrs. Gilhula is to-day in the full enjoyment of good health, and in all these years there has not been the slightest return of the trouble.

Here is the letter Mrs. Gilhula wrote at the time of her cure:
"About four years ago I was taken sick with stomach trouble and consulted several of the leading physicians here, all of whom pronounced the disease to be cancer of the stomach of an incurable nature, and told me that it was hardly to be expected that I could live long. Afterward the two doctors who were attending me gave me up to die."

By the advice of some of my friends, who knew of the virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters, I was induced to try it, and I am now happy to say that after using part of the first bottle I felt so much better I was able to get up. I am thankful to state that I am completely cured of the disease by the use of B.B.B., although it had baffled the doctors for a long time. I am firmly convinced that Burdock Blood Bitters saved my life."

Here is the letter received from her a short time ago:
"I am still in good health. I thank Burdock Blood Bitters for saving my life twelve years ago, and highly recommend it to other sufferers from stomach troubles of any kind." ELIZABETH GILHULA.

What Makes Him Very Weary.
I cannot think that I am by nature or by training ungallant. A fashionable birthday book, in copies of which I cannot describe my photograph too frequently, or too gladly, assures me that I am "full of reverence for a true woman," and as we invariably become what we are described as I feel that nothing now would persuade me to be unkind to the sex, and yet I know not by what diabolical remnant of a barbarous atavism I have to confess that the exaggerated thesis of feminism exasperates me beyond words. What is so ludicrously termed, in adorning publishers' advertisements, "a masterpiece of sexual female fiction," makes me positive by its own admission, to the immortality of its morals, poor thing, are of the least possible importance, but at its preposterous vulgar utility. Yet the cliches of the old gallantry oppress us still, and a man acts as poor a figure in opposing the extreme feminism as he does in refusing his seat in a crowded omnibus to a hard featured woman in bloomers. Accordingly the feminists have almost their own way except when duty calls a man to the Spartan protest of the ballot box.—Edmund Gosse in North American Review.

STOPPING A STAMPEDE.
Secret of the Cowboy's Coolness in the Face of Apparent Peril.
"One of the slickest things I ever saw in my life," said a veteran army officer the other day, "was a cowboy stopping a cattle stampede. A herd of about 900 or 800 had got frightened at something and broke away pell mell with their tails in the air and the bulls at the head of the procession. But Mr. Cowboy didn't get excited at all when he saw the herd was going straight for a big bluff, and they would certainly tumble down into the canyon and be killed. You know that when a herd like that gets to going it can't stop, no matter whether the cat's paw to death or not. Those in the rear crowd those ahead, and away they go. I wouldn't have given a dollar a head for that herd, but the cowboy spurred up his mustang, made a little detour, came in right in front of the herd, cut across their path at a right angle and then galloped leisurely on the edge of the bluff, behind and looked down at that wild mass of beef coming galloping toward him. He was as cool as a cucumber, though I expected to see him killed and was so excited I could not speak."

"Well, sir, when the leaders had got within about a quarter of a mile of him I saw them try to slack up, though they could not do it very quickly. But the whole herd seemed to want to stop, and when the cows and steers in the rear got about where the cowboy had cut across their path I was surprised to see them stop and commence to nibble at the grass. Then the whole herd stopped, wheeled, struggled back and went to fighting for a chance to eat where the rear guard was."

"You see, that cowboy had opened a big bag of salt he had brought out from the ranch to give the cattle, galloped across the herd's course and emptied the bag. Every critter sniffed that line of salt, and of course, that broke up the stampede. But I tell you it was a queer sight to see that man out there on the edge of that bluff quietly rolling a cigarette, when it seemed as if he'd be lying under 200 tons of beef in about a minute and a half."

ULCERKURE—Recommended by physicians as best cure for wounds and sores

BABY'S OWN SOAP.
Some twelve years ago Mrs. Elizabeth Gilhula, wife of the postmaster of Boston, was taken ill with an obscure stomach trouble which her physicians pronounced cancer of the stomach and informed her that her lease of life would be short.

Nil Desperandum.
I asked a maid in fair Bordeaux To marry me. I loved her wax. Ah, me! It was a crushing blow. When she replied, "You dooby, neaz."

So then I journeyed to Cologne To wed a girl I long had known. When I got there, my bird had flown, And I, alas, am still alone!

So now I linger in Marseille, With cheerfulness that never fails. Hoping that soon some favoring gillies Will put new wind into my sails. —John C. M. Valentine in St. Nicholas.

STREET CAR ACCIDENT.—Mr. Thomas Sablin says: "Two years ago I was badly hurt by being run over by a car on the street railway. We at once commenced litigation, but the foot with Dr. Thomas' Edey's Oil, when the discoloration and swelling was removed, and in nine days he could walk about. We at once made a bottle in the house ready for any emergency."

CONCEITS OF SOME MEN.
The Actor Speaks His Little Piece on That Subject.

"The newspapers are very fond of harping on the vanity of actors," said a popular comedian, who happened to be in the city the other day, "but it is nothing. I honestly believe, to the extreme self-satisfaction of the average writer. A literary man can always understand literary vanity and sympathize with it, but he is apt to regard any other brand as preposterous and absurd. Why, I was talking to a dramatic critic the other day, and he showed me a letter from a pretty well known member of my own profession. 'Here's a fellow with a frightful case of big head,' he exclaimed ironically, 'and yet, by Jove! he can't write three lines of decent English to save his soul.'"

"Now, I claim that that is a fair example of the journalistic point of view. The average professional writer is prone to gauge folk in other lines by their literary facility and is really amused that a chap can find anything to be vain about as long as he can't sling ink. If that isn't monstrous conceit, I'll eat my derby. It is ten times worse than the poor player, who struts around like a peacock, but never dreams of sneering at his critic because the critic can't act."

This reminds me, by the way, of a newspaper friend of mine in Chicago who was sent to interview a wealthy pork packer and came away mad as blazes because the magnate had tried to patronize him. "The ignorant chump!" he said bitterly. "I'd like to see him tackle my job!" That evening I met the pork packer at the Calumet club, and it seemed that he, too, was displeased over the encounter. "He's a very impudent whippersnapper," he remarked in describing the reporter. "I'll bet he ain't got sense enough to trim a side of meat!" "Interesting exhibit of criticisms," wasn't it?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns and family, of Medicine Hat, arrived on yesterday's Imperial Limited to attend the funeral of Mrs. Burns's sister, Mrs. Wm. Armstrong, which will take place this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. McCracken were in town this week returning home from the States where Mr. McCracken has been for the benefit of his health. Mr. McCracken will resume his duties as station agent at Broadview.

Mr. Frank Faulkner, grain buyer for Bready, Love & Tryon, has been transferred to Winnipeg, and left Tuesday morning for that place. Mrs. Faulkner and family will follow next week. We understand that Mr. Hugh Thompson, of Buffalo Lake, will succeed Mr. Faulkner.

Mr. Jos. Mills, of Galt, Ont., special deputy R.T. of T., passed through last week en route to Edmonton, and called on the members of Glencourse Council with a view to making arrangements for a visit later. Mr. Mills' special work is in the insurance department of the Templars.

Mr. L. Dundas Smith, inspector for the Manitoba and North-West Loan Co., is in town this week. Mr. Smith reports a considerable movement in land this year, and prices have just about doubled in some places during the last two or three years. He considers Moose Jaw as being on the verge of a boom.

Mr. Geo. Beall and Mr. Maybe, stock dealers of Toronto, were in town Saturday en route to Calgary. Mr. Beall made a short visit with his sisters, Mrs. Geo. Perry and Mrs. Wetmore. The latter, who has been very ill, intends leaving for Toronto with her brother on his return from the west.

Mr. F. C. Potts, formerly of the Free Press staff, but now travelling salesman for the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., Ltd., of Fernie, B.C., was in town on Monday and has established a permanent agency here with Mr. J. T. Simpson. This economical fuel will be sold in Moose Jaw this winter for $6.75 a ton delivered, $6.50 at car, and $5.85 by car lots.

The Innisfail Free Lance is afraid that under the present regulations those who transmit money through the mails have no sufficient protection against dishonest officials on the Calgary and Edmonton line, as the opportunities to decamp are unusually good. It suggests the appointment of another inspector west of Moose Jaw in order to overcome this.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Simpson and the Misses Simpson, will be sorry to learn that they received a telegram last Friday afternoon announcing the death of Mr. Simpson's father, which occurred at New Brook, near Ottawa, on Thursday, Aug. 31st. Deceased had nearly approached the allotted three score and ten, being in his 64th year.

Miss Frost, formerly of the Portage la Prairie public school staff, and Rev. F. B. Wooten, a graduate of Wesley College and formerly a missionary at this place, were married at Owen Sound on Wednesday, August 16th. The newly married couple at once left for Toronto, en route for Murillo, where Rev. Mr. Wooten has now charge of a church.

J. D. McInnis, the Regina agent for the John Abell Threshing Machine Co., has sold two large advance steam outfits with blowers and feeders on them—the first introduced into the district—one to the Stony Beach Brass Band Threshing Co., and another to the Fairville Co-operative Threshing Co. There is no doubt but that we may now hear of them being used, as these outfits are up to date in every respect.

All the members of the Stony Beach band came into town last Thursday evening to attend the Godfrey and Sons band concert. This band is composed chiefly of the most prosperous and progressive farmers of that portion of the country. A threshing syndicate has recently been formed in the district under the name of the Stony Beach Brass Band Threshing company. There are eleven members of the syndicate and every one of them is a member of the band.—The West.

Saturday's Free Press stated:—A big excursion of Ontario house-seekers reached the city yesterday by the C.P.R. The party numbered nearly five hundred and came from points all through the eastern province. They were taken out on the main and various branch lines to-day, where the greater number have friends, they will disperse here and there. Moose Jaw, 53, Regina 12, Estevan 103, Deloraine 28, Roston 17, Moosomin 106, Calgary 45, Edmonton 55, Prince Albert 20, Cowan 30, and others for Sidney, Lacombe, Plum Coulee, Didsbury, Yorkton, Vancouver, Treherne and Bismarck.

The Messrs. Paul, of Battleford, arrived in town this week with a bunch of nearly 60 cattle, mostly cows, which are to be shipped to the Medicine Hat ranges. One evening, just after the herd had forded the South Saskatchewan, a hailstorm came up and the cattle turned and stampeded, surrounding the four riders who had them in charge and unhorning one of them, but fortunately without doing an injury. The herd tore on, and coming to a lake on which there was a high cut bank, they plunged madly over it. It being nearly dark by this time, Mr. Paul could do nothing but wait, and when he could see he found that some of the cattle had been killed in their frenzied rush. Glad it was no worse, they took the trail again and all ended well.

Robert Green, noxious weeds inspector for this district, informs us that complaints are being made about noxious weeds being allowed to mature on the public highways. Under the Local Improvement Ordinance, it is the duty of the Overseers to have these weeds destroyed.

A contingent of young people from Regina spent several days in town last week. One of the young ladies told a Times reporter that they had just come up for "a kick." We are glad they did not return disappointed, as there was a "Bird" from the capital in town that day.

Mr. Alex. Thompson, who is operating a North-West Government well boring outfit north-east of Regina, was in town last Saturday on a visit to his farm. Alex. has been putting down some deep holes this year and has struck water in several places. Where he is now working for his horse down 155 feet, but has not yet struck a sufficient supply. Mr. Thompson returned east on Tuesday.

Last week Mr. J. E. Bennett's eldest son had his hand almost blown off by the bursting of a gun. He had picked up the gun in the house and went out to try a cartridge that they had loaded. As he went out the cartridge exploded bursting the breech of the gun in his hand and blowing off three fingers. The little fellow showed lots of grit when getting the wound dressed.

Mr. J. P. Fowler, a prominent farmer of the Clinton Settlement, met with a serious accident last Saturday. While riding horse back the animal stumbled and fell on top of him, slightly bruising his leg. In the scramble which followed Mr. Fowler was struck on the shoulder by the horse's foot, the blow breaking his collar bone. This is a very inconvenient season for such an accident to happen.
